

addressing, understanding and preventing homosexuality in today's youth

A life-changing, one-day conference from Focus on the Family

Dear Friend,

I am writing to you today to invite you to attend Love Won Out—a dynamic, one-day conference in Colorado Springs which will examine one of society's most critical issues facing today's youth—homosexuality.

It's a topic that makes many people feel uncomfortable, confused and even defensive. But if you care about youth, the rise in homosexuality cannot be ignored. That's why the Love Won Out conference is drastically needed today. We can't escape the onslaught of misinformation that seeks to influence our churches, schools, businesses and neighborhoods. It's often communicated that homosexuality is a biological imperative and that change and freedom are not possible. I am living proof that the power of God's love can transform hearts and lives.

Whether you're a parent, youth worker, educator or simply someone who has a heart for youth, we urge you to join Focus on the Family on Saturday, November 4, 2000, at Focus on the Family in Colorado Springs. You'll get answers to some of the tough questions you may have regarding homosexuality. You'll hear from nationally known speakers who have firsthand experience with this seldom-told side of the homosexual issue. For the sake of the next generation, don't miss this opportunity to hear from experts who will provide you with tools to understand and proactively deal with this issue.

I hope that you will take the time to read the enclosed information about the seminar, and that you will plan to be with us on November 4. Please respond promptly, because seating is limited! I look forward to meeting you.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink that reads "John Paulk". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of each word being capitalized and prominent.

John Paulk
Manager, Homosexuality and Gender Department
Focus on the Family

